When Perseus grew up, Polydectes gave him a series of challenging tasks to complete. Armed with a sword made by the god Hermes, winged sandals, and a shiny bronze shield given to him by the goddess Athena, Perseus slew the dreaded monster Medusa. This hideous creature had writhing snakes for hair, elephant-like tusks for teeth, and blood-red eyes. Whoever looked at her was instantly turned to stone.

A long, long, long time ago, even before Perseus was born, his grandfather, the Acrisios, the king of Argos, was given a prophecy that he would someday be killed by his grandson. To protect himself from this fate, the terrified king imprisoned his only daughter, Danae, in an underground dungeon so that she could never marry or have children. Certain that he would never be a grandfather, Acrisios relaxed. But Zeus, the great father of the gods, had other plans.

Zeus had been watching Danae and thought she was stunning—too beautiful to resist. He turned himself into golden rain and poured through the bronze bars in the roof of her elaborate dungeon. As the rain fell upon Danae, its magical powers caused a child to begin growing within her. Nine months later, she gave birth to a son and named him Perseus.

Outraged as well as frightened when he learned of a grandson's birth, Acrisios enclosed mother and son in a chest, which he flung into the sea. After drifting about for a long time, the chest finally washed up on a distant island. A fisherman found it and brought it to his brother, King Polydectes, who took Perseus and his mother into his palace.

When Perseus grew up, Polydectes gave him a series of challenging tasks to complete. Armed with a sword made by the god Hermes, winged sandals, and a shiny bronze shield given to him by the goddess Athena, Perseus slew the dreaded monster Medusa. This hideous creature had writhing snakes for hair, elephant-like tusks for teeth, and blood-red eyes. Whoever looked at her was instantly turned to stone.

As success followed success, Perseus began to think about the stories he had heard about his grandfather, Acrisios. So, after a brief visit to his mother, the young hero set sail for Argos. Before he reached it, however, Acrisios got word that his long-lost grandson was coming and fled the city, for he still feared the prophecy.

While waiting for Acrisios to return, Perseus attended festival games being held in a neighboring town. A skilled athlete, Perseus entered the discus contest. As he prepared to throw it, he lost control and the heavy disk went hurtling into the crowd, striking a man and killing him. Alas, the tragic prophecy had proved true—the dead spectator was Acrisios. Perseus was so troubled about the accident that he chose to leave Argos and build his own city—the legendary Mycenae.

What or who do you think of when you think of the word “hero?” Provide reasons or examples to support your response.

Introduction:

Joseph Campbell, an American psychologist and mythological researcher, wrote a famous book titled The Hero with a Thousand Faces. Campbell discovered many common patterns that are in many hero myths and stories from around the world. He described several basic stages that almost every hero goes through.

Act 1: Separation

The Ordinary World

Heroes exist in a world that is considered ordinary or uneventful by those who live there. Often people in the ordinary world consider the heroes odd. They possess some ability or characteristic that makes them feel out-of-place.

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: Dorothy in Kansas

The Hobbit: Bilbo Baggins in Hobbiton

The Call to Adventure

Usually there is a discovery, some event, or some danger that starts them on the heroic path. Heroes find a magic object or discover their world is in danger. In some cases, heroes happen upon their quest by accident.

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: The tornado

The Hobbit: Gandalf the wizard arrives

Entering the Unknown

As they embark on their journey, the heroes enter a world they have never experienced before. It might be filled with supernatural creatures, breathtaking sights, and the constant threat of death. Unlike the heroes’ home, this outside world has its own rules, and they quickly learn to respect these rules as their endurance, strength, and courage are tested time and time again.

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: Dorothy must learn the rules of Oz

The Matrix: Neo must come to grips with the realities and unrealities of the Matrix

Supernatural Aid/Meeting with the Mentor

Supernatural does not have to mean magical. There are plenty of hero stories that don’t have wizards or witches. Supernatural means “above the laws of nature.”

Heroes are almost always started on their journey by a character who has mastered the laws of the outside world and come back to bestow this wisdom upon them. This supernatural character often gives them the means to complete the quest. Some of the time the gift is simply wisdom. Other times it is an object with magical powers. In every instance it is something the hero needs to succeed.

The Hobbit: Gandalf

Star Wars: Obi-Wan Kenobi

Cinderella: Fairy Godmother

Act 2: Initiation and Transformation

Allies/Helpers

Every hero needs a helper, much like every superhero needs a sidekick. Most heroes would fail miserably without their helpers. For example, in the Greek hero story of Theseus, Minos’ daughter Ariadne helps Theseus find his way through the Labyrinth. She does this by holding one end of a golden thread while Theseus works his way inward to slay the Minotaur. Without her help, Theseus would never have fulfilled his quest. He also would not have found his way out of the maze once he did.

Lord of the Rings: Samwise Gamgee

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: The Tin Woodsman, Scarecrow, and Cowardly Lion

The Road of Trials

The road of trials is a series of tests, tasks, or ordeals that the person must undergo to begin the transformation. Often the person fails one or more of these tests, which often occur in threes. The heroes progress through this series of tests, a set of obstacles that make them stronger, preparing them for their final showdown.

The Supreme Ordeal

At long last they reach the Supreme Ordeal, the obstacle they have journeyed so far to overcome. All the heroes’ training and toil comes into play now. The journey has hardened them, and it’s time for them to show their prowess. Once this obstacle is overcome, the tension will be relieved. The worst has passed, and the quest, while not officially over, has succeeded.

Lord of the Rings: Mount Doom

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: Defeating the Wicked Witch

Act 3: The Return

The Magic Flight

After the heroes complete the Supreme Ordeal and have the reward firmly in hand, all that is left is for them is to return home. Just because the majority of the adventure has passed doesn’t mean that the return journey will be smooth sailing. There are still lesser homebound obstacles to overcome. At some point the hero must often escape with the reward. This can sometimes take the form of a chase or battle.

The Hobbit: The Battle of Five Armies

The Lord of the Rings: Return to Hobbiton

Confronting the Father

In this step the person must confront whatever holds the ultimate power in his or her life. In many myths and stories this is the father, or a father figure who has life and death power. Although this step is most frequently symbolized by an encounter with a male person or god, it does not have to be a male, just someone or thing with incredible power.

Master of Two Worlds/Restoring the World

Success on the heroes’ quest is life-changing, for them and often for many others. By achieving victory, they have changed or preserved their original world. Often, they return with an object or personal ability that allows them to save their world.

The heroes have also grown in spirit and strength. They have proved themselves worthy for marriage, kingship, or queenship. Their success in the supernatural worlds allows them to return and be heroes in their own world.

Lord of the Rings: Frodo saves the Shire

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz: Dorothy rids Oz of the Wicked Witch

Percy Jackson, the main character in The Lightning Thief, is following the path of the hero in “The Hero’s Journey.” Percy Jackson is a boy who is not accepted by many people around him. In “The Hero’s Journey” it says that heroes “possess some ability or characteristic that makes them feel “out-of-place.” In The Lightning Thief, Percy says, “I have dyslexia and attention deficit disorder and I had never made above a C- in my life.” In this quote, Percy expresses his feelings of exclusion because of his learning differences. This shows that Percy is like the archetype of a hero because he also has characteristics that make him feel out of place.

Myths and Legends

In appearance, the gods were supposed to resemble mortals, but they were more beautiful, strong, and tall. They resembled human beings in their feelings and habits, marrying one another and having children, and needing daily nourishment and refreshing sleep.

The Greeks believed that their gods were much smarter than men, but that the gods still had human feelings and passions. We often see the gods motivated by revenge, deceit, and jealousy. But they always punish the evildoer, especially any mortal who neglects their worship.

We often hear of the gods descending to earth to visit mankind. Often, both gods and goddesses become attached to mortals and have children with them. These children are called heroes or demigods, and were usually known for their great strength and courage. But although there were so many points of resemblance between gods and men, only the gods were immortal.

They possessed the power to make themselves invisible and could disguise themselves as men or animals. They could also transform human beings into trees, stones, or animals, either as a punishment for their misdeeds or to protect the individual from danger.

Most of these divinities lived on the summit of Mount Olympus, each possessing his or her individual home, and all meeting together on festive occasions in the council-chamber of the gods. Men build magnificent temples to their honor and worshipped the gods with the greatest solemnity.

Cronus

Cronus was the son of Uranus and Gaea (Mother Earth), and was the youngest of the Titans. When Gaea gave birth to other children, such as Cyclops, who looked monstrous, Uranus was not proud of them and put them in a pit under the earth. This made Gaea very angry, and she asked Cronus and his Titan brothers to rise up against their father and save their other brothers. Cronus did overthrow his father, but he did not save his monstrous brothers. Gaea, who loved all of her children, was so angered that Cronus did not help his brothers that she began to plan Cronus' ruin.

Cronus was the god of time. He married his sister Rhea, and together they had three sons and three daughters. Cronus was afraid that his children might one day rise up against his authority, as he had against his own father, Uranus. His father had predicted that this would happen. In order to be sure that he kept power and the prophecy did not come true, Cronus attempted to escape fate by swallowing each child as soon as it was born.

This filled his wife Rhea with sorrow and anger. When it came to Zeus, her sixth and last child, Rhea was determined to save this one child at least, to love and cherish. She asked her parents, Uranus and Gaea, for advice and assistance. They told her to wrap a stone in baby-clothes and give it to Cronus. She did, and he swallowed the stone without noticing the deception.

Anxious to keep the secret of his existence from Cronus, Rhea sent the infant Zeus secretly to Crete, where he was fed, protected, and educated. Priests of Rhea beat their shields together and kept up a constant noise at the entrance, which drowned the cries of the child and frightened away all intruders.

Grown to manhood, Zeus determined to make his father restore his brothers and sisters to the light of day. The goddess Metis helped him, convincing Cronus to drink a potion, which caused him to give back the children he had swallowed. Cronus was so enraged that war between the father and son became inevitable. Zeus eventually dethroned his father Cronus, who was banished from his kingdom and deprived forever of the supreme power. Cronus' son now became supreme god.

Chiron pursed his lips. “Even I am not old enough to remember that, child, but I know it was a time of darkness and savagery for mortals. Kronos, the Lord of the Titans, called his reign the Golden Age because men lived innocent and free of all knowledge. But that was mere propaganda. The Titan king cared nothing for your kind except as appetizers or a source of cheap entertainment. It was only in the early reign of Lord Zeus when Prometheus the good Titan brought fire to mankind, that your species began to progress, and even then, Prometheus was branded a radical thinker. Zeus punished him severely, as you may recall. Of course, eventually the gods warmed to humans, and Western civilization was born.”

The Key Elements of Mythology

Myths are stories that explain the world and humans' experiences. Mythological stories and characters reflect a culture's past and traditions and, most importantly, tell the story of the values and beliefs that are central to a culture, and to the human race.

The universal appeal of myths is, in part, a result of elements that are typical or common across most myths. These repeated elements include symbols, themes, patterns, and characters. These elements help to develop and communicate the theme of a myth. Common themes in myths include the struggle between the forces of good and evil, the quest of a hero, or the origin of some aspect of the natural world.

Element	Description
Tension between Opposing Forces in the Universe	Myths are often structured around the tensions between opposing forces in the universe, like light versus dark and good versus evil. Often the main characters in myths have responsibility for resolving conflicts between these opposing forces; for example, heroes fighting to overcome evil monsters.
A Struggle for Power	The struggle for power in a myth occurs between two opposing forces. This struggle for power may be between two supernatural forces, a supernatural force and a mortal, or two members of a single family. This struggle may be a result of desire for control, vanity, or jealousy. Often this struggle ends with punishment or even death.
Explanation of the Origins of Life and the Natural World	Many myths come from humans' early desire to explain the origins of life and the natural world. They try making sense of the wonders of the world they perceived. Myths often attempt to answer the fundamental questions: How did the world come to be? Who are we? What is our purpose on earth? Because ancient people could not rely on science, they told these stories to provide an explanation about where we came from and how things came to be.
Fate and Prophecy	The idea of fate , and its overwhelming power, is a central theme in many myths. Neither gods nor humans seem able to escape fate, despite many attempts to do so. Making this theme even more prominent, many myths begin with a prophecy. This prophecy then shapes the actions and interactions of the various characters of the myth.
Supernatural or Non-Human Characters	Some of the characters in myths are often non-human even though they possess human qualities and emotions. These characters might include gods, goddesses, and supernatural beings. These non-human characters often possess super-human powers and use them to interact with our human world by, for example, controlling the weather. Gods and goddesses may also visit the human world by disguising themselves in different forms.
A Quest or Completion of a Task	Myths often tell stories of human characters who travel between worlds to complete a task; for example, finding someone or something. Often this involves travel between the present world and other worlds like Mount Olympus, the home of the gods, or the Underworld, which is hidden beneath the Earth and is the kingdom of the dead.

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 7Model Analytical Mini-Essay: Elements of Mythology and Theme of Cronus

The story of Cronus is a classic myth that shows the theme of a mother's love.

All myths contain significant elements of mythology. In the myth of "Cronus", the text says, "This filled his wife Rhea with sorrow and anger. When it came to Zeus, her sixth and last child, Rhea was determined to save this one child at least, to love and cherish." One significant element of mythology is that the characters are often non-human, but they have human emotions and qualities. Rhea is a non-human Titan, but she has human emotions such as sadness and loneliness. In the "Cronus" text it also says, "She asked her parents, Uranus and Gaea, for advice and assistance. They told her to wrap a stone in baby-clothes and give it to Cronus. She did, and he swallowed the stone without noticing the deception." Many myths contain a struggle for power. This struggle can be between members of the same family. This shows a wife tricking her husband in order to save her child. These elements of mythology help define this story as a classic myth.

An important theme in the myth of "Cronus" is a mother's love for her children. Mother Earth's love for her other children is so powerful that it makes her want to destroy her son Cronus. The text says, "Cronus did overthrow his father, but he did not save his monstrous brothers. Gaea, who loved all of her children, was so angered that Cronus did not help his brothers that she began to plan Cronus' ruin." Also, Rhea's love for her children is what makes her trick her husband. In the myth, it says, "Anxious to keep the secret of his existence from Cronus, Rhea sent the infant Zeus secretly to Crete, where he was fed, protected, and educated." Both these examples show the power of mother's love for her children.

This classic myth shows how a mother's struggle to save her children became the origin of the gods and Greek culture.

The world, as first it was, to the Greeks was a sunless world in which land, air, and sea were mixed up together, over which ruled a deity called Chaos. A giant race of Titans lived on this newly made earth. One of the mightiest Titans was Prometheus.

Prometheus and his brother Epimetheus were trusted to give special gifts, abilities, and instincts to the beasts, birds, and fishes of the world. They also were given the task of making a creature lower than the gods, less great than the Titans, yet in knowledge and in understanding higher than the beasts and birds and fishes. This being was called Man.

Prometheus took some clay from the ground at his feet, moistened it with water, and made it into an image, in form like the gods. Into its nostrils Eros breathed the spirit of life, Pallas Athené gave it a soul, and the first Man looked wonderingly round on the earth.

Prometheus, proud of the beautiful thing of his own creation, wanted to give Man a worthy gift, but no gift remained for him. He was naked, unprotected, more helpless than any of the beasts. And Prometheus pitied him more than the animals, since Man had a soul to suffer. Surely Zeus, ruler of Olympus, would have compassion for Man? But Prometheus looked to Zeus in vain; he did not have compassion for Man.

Prometheus pitied Man, and thought of a power belonging to the gods alone. “We shall give fire to the Man we have made,” he said to Epimetheus. He waited patiently and, unseen by the gods, made his way into Olympus, lighted a hollow torch with a spark from the chariot of the Sun, and brought this royal gift to Man. With fire, Man no longer trembled in the darkness of caves when Zeus hurled his lightning across the sky. He was no longer scared of the animals that hunted him and drove him in terror. With fire, Man made weapons, defied the frost and cold, made tools and money, introduced the arts, and was able to destroy as well as to create.

From his throne on Olympus, Zeus looked down on the earth and saw blue-gray smoke that curled upward to the sky. He watched more closely and realized with terrible wrath that what he saw came from fire, that before had been the gods’ own sacred power. He gathered a council of the gods to decide how to punish Prometheus for deceiving him. Zeus chained Prometheus to the top of a mountain, and every day an eagle came and ate Prometheus’ liver. Every night, his liver grew back.

This council also decided to punish Man. They decided to create a thing that should forever charm the souls and hearts of men and forever be Man’s downfall. This thing was Pandora.

The Fates

The ancients believed that how long people lived and the destinies of mortals were regulated by three sister-goddesses, called Clotho, Lachesis, and Atropos, who were the daughters of Zeus and Themis.

The power that they wielded [held] over the fate of man was symbolized by the thread of life, which they spun out for the life of each human being from his birth to the grave. They divided this job between them. Clotho wound the flax around the distaff [a stick or spindle], ready for her sister Lachesis, who spun out the thread of life, which Atropos, with her scissors, relentlessly snipped asunder [apart], when the life of an individual was about to terminate [end].

The Fates represent the moral force by which the universe is governed. Both mortals and immortals were forced to submit to this force; even Zeus is powerless to prevent the Fates' orders. The Fates, or Moiræ, are the special deities that rule over the life and death of mortals Poets describe the Moiræ as stern, inexorable [impossible to stop or prevent] female divinities. They are aged, hideous, and also lame, which is meant to show the slow and halting march of destiny, which they controlled. They were thought of as prophetic divinities.

The Story of Medusa and Athena

Once upon a time, a long time ago, there lived a beautiful maiden named Medusa. Medusa lived in the city of Athens in a country named Greece—and although there were many pretty girls in the city, Medusa was considered the most lovely.

Unfortunately, Medusa was very proud of her beauty and thought or spoke of little else. Each day she boasted of how pretty she was, and each day her boasts became more outrageous.

On and on Medusa went about her beauty to anyone and everyone who stopped long enough to hear her—until one day when she made her first visit to the Parthenon with her friends. The Parthenon was the largest temple to the goddess Athena in all the land. It was decorated with amazing sculptures and paintings. Everyone who entered was awed by the beauty of the place and couldn't help thinking how grateful they were to Athena, goddess of wisdom, for inspiring them and for watching over their city of Athens. Everyone, that is, except Medusa.

When Medusa saw the sculptures, she whispered that she would have made a much better subject for the sculptor than Athena had. When Medusa saw the artwork, she commented that the artist had done a fine job considering the goddess's thick eyebrows—but imagine how much more wonderful the painting would be if it was of someone as delicate as Medusa.

And when Medusa reached the altar, she sighed happily and said, “My, this is a beautiful temple. It is a shame it was wasted on Athena, for I am so much prettier than she is—perhaps someday people will build an even grander temple to my beauty.”

Medusa's friends grew pale. The priestesses who overheard Medusa gasped. Whispers ran through all the people in the temple, who quickly began to leave—for everyone knew that Athena enjoyed watching over the people of Athens and feared what might happen if the goddess had overheard Medusa's rash remarks.

Before long the temple was empty of everyone except Medusa, who was so busy gazing proudly at her reflection in the large bronze doors that she hadn't noticed the swift departure of everyone else. The image she was gazing at wavered and suddenly, instead of her own features, it was the face of Athena that Medusa saw reflected back at her.

“Vain and foolish girl,” Athena said angrily. “You think you are prettier than I am! I doubt it to be true, but even if it were—there is more to life than beauty alone. While others work and play and learn, you do little but boast and admire yourself.”

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 12

The Story of Medusa and Athena

Medusa tried to point out that her beauty was an inspiration to those around her and that she made their lives better by simply looking so lovely, but Athena silenced her with a frustrated wave.

“Nonsense,” Athena retorted. “Beauty fades swiftly in all mortals. It does not comfort the sick, teach the unskilled, or feed the hungry. And by my powers, your loveliness shall be stripped away completely. Your fate shall serve as a reminder to others to control their pride.”

And with those words, Medusa’s face changed to that of a hideous monster. Her hair twisted and thickened into horrible snakes that hissed and fought one another atop her head. And with that, Athena sent Medusa with her hair of snakes to live with the blind monsters—the gorgon sisters—at the ends of the earth, so that no innocents would be accidentally turned to stone at the sight of her.

Theseus and the Minotaur

Prince Theseus was greatly loved by his father, King Egeus. Theseus, however, was much too brave and active a young man to spend all his time talking about the past with his father. His ambition was to perform other, more heroic deeds.

One morning, Prince Theseus awoke to sobs and screams of woe—from the king’s palace, from the streets, and from the temples. He put on his clothes as quickly as he could and, hastening to the king, inquired what it all meant.

“Alas!” quoth King Egeus. “This is the saddest anniversary of the year. It is the day when we draw lots to see which of the youths and maidens of Athens shall go to be devoured by the horrible Minotaur!”

“The Minotaur!” exclaimed Prince Theseus; and, like a brave young prince as he was, he put his hand to the hilt of his sword. “What kind of a monster may that be? Is it not possible to slay him?”

But King Egeus shook his head and explained. In the island of Crete there lived a dreadful monster, called a Minotaur, shaped partly like a man and partly like a bull. But King Minos of Crete built a habitation for the Minotaur and took care of his health and comfort. A few years before, there had been a war between the city of Athens and the island of Crete, in which the Athenians were beaten. They could only beg for peace if they agreed to seven young men and seven maidens, every year, to be devoured by the pet monster of the cruel King Minos.

When Theseus heard the story, he said, “Let the people of Athens this year draw lots for only six young men, instead of seven. I will myself be the seventh; and let the Minotaur devour me if he can!”

As Prince Theseus was going on board, his father said, “My beloved son, observe that the sails of this vessel are black, since it goes upon a voyage of sorrow and despair. I do not know whether I can survive till the vessel returns. But as long as I do live, I shall creep daily to the top of yonder cliff, to watch if there be a sail upon the sea. And if by some happy chance you should escape the jaws of the Minotaur, then tear down those dismal sails, and hoist others that shall be bright as the sunshine. When I see the white sails, I and all the people will know that you are coming back victorious.”

Theseus promised that he would do so. Then he set sail, and eventually arrived at King Minos’ kingdom. The guards of King Minos came down to the waterside and took charge of the 14 young men and damsels. Theseus and his companions were led to the king’s palace.

When King Minos saw Theseus, the king looked at him more attentively, because his face was calm and grave. “Young man,” asked he, with his stern voice, “are you not appalled at the certainty of being devoured by this terrible Minotaur?”

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 12

Theseus and the Minotaur

“I have offered my life in a good cause,” answered Theseus, “and therefore I give it freely and gladly. But thou, King Minos, aren’t you appalled to do this dreadful wrong? Thou art a more hideous monster than the Minotaur himself!”

“Aha! do you think me so?” cried the king, laughing in his cruel way. “Tomorrow you shall have an opportunity of judging which is the greater monster, the Minotaur or the king!”

Near the king’s throne stood his daughter Ariadne. She was a beautiful maiden who looked at these poor doomed captives with very different feelings from those of the iron-breasted King Minos. She begged her father to set them free.

“Peace, foolish girl!” answered King Minos. He would not hear another word in their favor. The prisoners were led away to a dungeon. The seven maidens and six young men soon sobbed themselves to slumber. But Theseus was not like them. He felt that he had the responsibility of all their lives upon him, and must consider whether there was a way to save them.

Just before midnight, the gentle Ariadne showed herself. “Are you awake, Prince Theseus?” she whispered. She invited him to follow her. Ariadne led him from the prison into the pleasant moonlight.

She told him he could sail away to Athens. “No,” answered the young man; “I will never leave Crete unless I can slay the Minotaur and save my poor companions.”

“I knew you would say that,” said Ariadne. “Come with me. Here is your own sword. You will need it.”

She led Theseus to a dark grove. Ariadne pressed her finger against a block of marble in a wall that yielded to her touch, disclosing an entrance just wide enough to admit them. She said, “In the center of this labyrinth is the Minotaur, and, Theseus, you must go thither to seek him.”

They heard a roar that resembled the lowing of a fierce bull, yet had a sort of human voice. “That is the Minotaur’s noise,” whispered Ariadne. “Follow that sound through the labyrinth and you will find him. Take the end of this silken string; I will hold the other end; and then, if you win the victory, it will lead you again to this spot.”

So, he took the end of the string in his left hand and his gold-hilted sword, ready drawn, in the other, and trod boldly into the labyrinth. Finally, at the center of the labyrinth, he saw the hideous creature. Sure enough, what an ugly monster it was! Only his horned head belonged to a bull; and yet, somehow, he looked like a bull all over. Theseus hated him but also felt pity. The monster let out a roar; Theseus understood that the Minotaur was saying to himself how miserable he was.

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 12

Theseus and the Minotaur

Was Theseus afraid? No! It strengthened his heart to feel a twitch at the silken cord, which he was still holding in his left hand. It was as if Ariadne were giving him all her might and courage.

Now the Minotaur caught sight of Theseus and instantly lowered his sharp horns, exactly as a mad bull does when he means to rush against an enemy. They began an awful fight. At last, the Minotaur made a run at Theseus, grazed his left side with his horn, and flung him down; and thinking that he had stabbed him to the heart, he cut a great caper in the air, opened his bull mouth from ear to ear, and prepared to snap his head off. But Theseus had leaped up and caught the monster off guard. He hit him upon the neck and made his bull head skip six yards from his human body, which fell down flat upon the ground.

So now the battle was ended. Theseus, as he leaned on his sword, taking breath, felt another twitch of the silken cord. Eager to let Ariadne know of his success, he followed the guidance of the thread and soon found himself at the entrance of the labyrinth.

“Thou hast slain the monster!” cried Ariadne, clasping her hands.

“Thanks to thee, dear Ariadne,” answered Theseus, “I return victorious.”

“Then,” said Ariadne, “we must quickly summon thy friends, and get them and thyself on board the vessel before dawn. If morning finds thee here, my father will avenge the Minotaur.”

The poor captives were awakened and told of what Theseus had done, and that they must set sail for Athens before daybreak. Prince Theseus lingered, asking Adriane to come with him. But the maiden said no. “My father is old, and has nobody but myself to love him.”

So, he said farewell to Ariadne and set sail with the others. On the homeward voyage, the 14 youths and damsels were in excellent spirits. But then happened a sad misfortune.

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 12

Theseus and the Minotaur

You will remember that Theseus' father, King Egeus, had said to hoist shiny sails, instead of black ones, in case Theseus should overcome the Minotaur and return victorious. In the joy of their success, however, they never thought about whether their sails were black, white, or rainbow-colored. Thus, the vessel returned, like a raven, with the same sable wings that had wafted her away.

Poor King Egeus, day after day, infirm as he was, had clambered to the summit of a cliff that overhung the sea, and there sat watching for Prince Theseus, homeward bound; and no sooner did he behold the fatal blackness of the sails than he concluded that his dear son had been eaten by the Minotaur. He could not bear the thought of living any longer; so, he stooped forward and fell headlong over the cliff, and was drowned, poor soul, in the waves that foamed at its base.

This was melancholy news for Prince Theseus, who, when he stepped ashore, found himself king of all the country. However, he sent for his dear mother, and, by taking her advice in matters of state, became a very excellent monarch, and was greatly beloved by his people.

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 2: LESSON 16

Model Literary Analysis: Connecting Theme in Prometheus and The Lightning Thief

In the myth of “Prometheus”, a hero decides to steal from Mount Olympus and bring it to the humans even though he will risk punishment from Zeus. In both the myth of “Prometheus” and the novel The Lightning Thief a hero has to go up against a powerful god in order to fight for what is right. In the myth of “Prometheus”, the hero is a less powerful god called Prometheus, and in The Lightning Thief, the hero is a boy with special powers called Percy Jackson.

In the myth of “Prometheus”, a hero has to go against a more powerful being and risk punishment in order to fight for what is right. Prometheus is the hero that goes against Zeus in order for mankind to progress. “Surely Zeus, rule of Olympus, would have compassion for Man? But Prometheus looked to Zeus in vain; he did not have compassion for man.” Even though he knew Zeus would punish him, Prometheus knew that the people needed to have fire. After giving people fire, it is clear Prometheus did the right thing. “With fire, Man no longer trembled in the darkness of caves when Zeus hurled his lightning across the sky. He was no longer scared of animals that hunted him and drove him in terror.”

In the same way, in The Lightning Thief, Percy is the hero who has to go against powerful beings to do what is right. Percy goes to the Underworld to face the powerful god Hades to take back the lightning bolt to return to Zeus. “Hades wasn’t bulked up like Ares, but he radiated power. He lunged on his throne of fused human bones, looking lithe, graceful, and dangerous as a panther.” Also, several times in the book, he has to stand up to Ares, the god of war, even though Ares is much more powerful than him. “I wanted to punch this guy, but somehow, I knew he was waiting for that. Ares’s power was causing my anger. He’d love it if I attacked. I didn’t want to give him the satisfaction.” As you can see, Percy goes through many trials in order to restore peace between Zeus and Poseidon, because it is the right thing to do.

Myths are important because they teach us lessons. For example, the myth of “Prometheus” teaches us that sometimes we have to fight for good against more powerful forces that might oppose it. Even though Zeus didn’t want to help mankind, Prometheus struggled against him time and again so that people on earth were able to progress. Rick Riordan included the myth of “Perseus” to show us that Percy is the modern-day Prometheus fighting for what is right.

Peer Critique Guidelines

- 1. Be Kind: Always treat others with dignity and respect. This means we never use words that are hurtful, including sarcasm.
- 2. Be Specific: Focus on particular strengths and weaknesses, rather than making general comments like “It’s good” or “I like it.” Provide insight into why it is good or what, specifically, you like about it.
- 3. Be Helpful: The goal is to positively contribute to the individual or the group, not to simply be heard. Echoing the thoughts of others or cleverly pointing out details that are irrelevant wastes time.
- 4. Participate: Peer critique is a process to support each other, and your feedback is valued!

Model Narrative: “The Golden Key”

A long time ago, there was a hamlet, and in this small village there lived a farm girl named Marney. Marney’s parents died when she was very young. She lived on a farm at the bottom of a large mountain with her loving grandparents. Marney’s grandparents once had a fertile farm filled with an abundance of vegetables and fruits that her grandfather would take to the market to sell. The farm was rich with trees, birds, and animals of every species that made their homes on the farm. There was plenty for all, and all were happy.

But now things were different. Spring never arrived. The soil had become hard, and the seeds could not be planted. Food was scarce, so the animals that had once inhabited the land left to seek more bountiful homes, plentiful with food and shelter. Marney’s grandparents were woeful, worried that they, too, would have to leave their home.

One evening, after a dinner of broth so meager, it ran from the spoon like water, Marney’s grandfather, sat beside her at the fire. “Marney, you are a perceptive and sensitive child. As you know, things are not going well for us on the farm this year. Marney, you are the only person that can save the farm from demise.”

“Tell me more, Grandpa,” Marney said.

“When you were born, Lord Dismalt put an evil spell on our farm. He said that in the year that you turned ten, our beautiful and fertile farm would become barren, the trees would not bear fruit and the land would become so tough that no seeds would be planted. Soon the farm and all of us would perish. He told us that you were the only one who could save us and that you would have to travel up the forbidden mountain and overcome many obstacles in order to reach the golden key that would unlock the curse and redeem our land.”

That night, Marney couldn’t sleep. She put on her clothes and quietly crept out of the kitchen door into the dark night. She was frightened, but she couldn’t let that stop her. She walked faster and faster until she reached the foot of the mountain, which was surrounded by a forest. The trees were so thick that it was impossible to find a path through the forest. Suddenly, a white goat appeared.

“Hello, goat. I am trying to find my way through this murky forest, dark and dense, so that I can save my family’s farm, but I cannot find a path on which to walk. Do you think that you could help me, please?”

“Follow me,” said the white goat.

GRADE 6: MODULE 1: UNIT 3: LESSON 2

Model Narrative: “The Golden Key”

Marney followed the goat as he munched a path for her through the forest. At the end of the forest, he turned to Marney and said, “I can go no farther. Good luck on your journey, my friend.” With that, the white goat vanished.

Marney began the steep climb up the incline of the dark mountain. Suddenly, it began to rain. The mountainside was slick, and Marney kept slipping and skidding into the mud. She began to weep, “Please, please can someone help me! I must make this trek to the dark castle to save my family’s farm.”

There before her appeared a giant white eagle. The bird spread its colossal wings, swooped down from the sky, picked Marney up, and flew her to the top of the mountain.

“Thank you for your help, eagle. Now I must find the golden key,” Marney said.

“Good luck on your journey,” the eagle replied. “The obstacles that you have faced are nothing like the one that lies ahead of you.” With that, the eagle flew away.

“Clang ... clang ... clang, clang,” something hard fell from the sky. It hit the side of the building and the roof of the entryway before landing at Marney’s feet. “You’re going to need this,” the eagle shouted from the blackened branch of a tree. Marney picked up the sword.

She walked toward the door of the castle and opened it ever so slowly. A cold breeze enveloped her. She walked down a dark hallway to the right, then turned a gloomy corner. There she saw him, the evil Lord Dismalt slobbering over a roasted vulture leg.

“Ho, there!” Marney called.

“What, is someone here?”

“Yes. It is I, Marney. When I was born, you put an evil curse on my family. I have come to get the magic key that will restore my family’s farm to what it once was.”

“I have no key, child.”

“You are a liar. It is there on the chain around your neck!”

“You will have to take this key from me. I will never give it up.”

Model Narrative: “The Golden Key”

Marney moved in closer. She pointed her sword at the evil Lord Dismalt. “Give me the key. Give me the key or we will fight to the death.”

At that, Lord Dismalt pulled his sword from its sheath and lunged toward Marney with all of his might. When he stood up, Marney realized that Lord Dismalt was only four feet tall. He had really skinny legs, so Marney decided to strike there first. She gave him one big kick to the shins, and Lord Dismalt fell on his knees crying. She zoomed in and stuck her sword in his face. “Give me the key, Dismalt, or face your death!”

“Oh, all right!” Dismalt yanked the key from around his neck and tossed it over to Marney. As he placed the key in Marney’s hand, he transformed into a radiant white pony.

Marney climbed upon his back and rode him safely back to her grandparents’ farm. When they saw her, Marney’s grandparents were overjoyed. Marney dismounted and noticed that her grandfather was carrying a box. “What’s that?” Marney asked.

“This is your last challenge, Marney. The key will unlock this box.” Marney put the key in the box and turned it to the right. The box popped open, and from it flowed the spring.

At that moment, the flowers bloomed. The soil became rich and fertile. Marney could hear the birds in the sky and the animals returning to their homes. Marney had saved spring and restored her family farm! And as for Lord Dismalt ... well, he lives happily in the paddock, munching grass and basking in the light of day!

Version 1

On her way to the mountain, Marney ran into a white goat. The goat ate away a path for Marney to follow through the forest. Then, the goat said good-bye and left Marney on the mountainside. Marney cried. Then an eagle flew down and carried Marney to the top of the mountain.

Version 2

“Hello, goat. I am trying to find my way through this murky forest, dark and dense, so that I can save my family’s farm, but I cannot find a path on which to walk. Do you think that you could help me, please?”

“Follow me,” said the white goat.

Marney followed the goat as he munched a path for her to follow through the forest. At the end of the forest he turned to Marney and said, “I can go no further. Good luck on your journey, my friend.” With that, the white goat vanished.

Marney began the steep climb up the incline of the dark mountain. Suddenly, it began to rain. The mountainside was slick, and Marney kept slipping and skidding into the mud. She began to weep, “Please, please can someone help me! I must make this trek to the dark castle to save my family’s farm.”

There, before her, appeared a giant white eagle. The bird spread its colossal wings, swooped down from the sky, picked Marney up, and flew her to the top of the mountain.

“Thank you for your help, eagle. Now I must find the golden key,” Marney said.

“Good luck on your journey,” the eagle replied. “The obstacles that you have faced are nothing like the one that lies ahead of you.” With that, the eagle flew away.

Using Strong Action Verbs

As writers, we often get stuck in particular patterns of writing, and one of these patterns is using the same verbs over and over again. One way to solve this problem is by replacing your general verbs with strong action verbs.

This table reveals several examples of general verbs and the vivid verbs that you can use to replace them. Keep in mind that each vivid verb has its own distinct meaning.

General Verb	Strong Action Verb
dislike	abhor, abominate, avoid, condemn, deplore, despise, detest, disapprove, hate, loathe, resent, scorn, shun
eat	consume, devour, dine, feast upon, gobble, ingest
like/love	admire, adore, appreciate, cherish, be fond of, worship
run	dart, dash, jog, lope, scamper, scurry, sprint
say/said	address, critique, define, establish, evaluate, examine, formulate, identify, propose, recommend, report, suggest, urge
